Learning Needs Analysis

Requirements building. From initial conversations to an onsite deep-dive, we will work with you to understand your complete learning and development needs by conducting a thorough Learning Needs Analysis.

We can support multiple roles, levels, competencies and experience.

Design

Bespoke. We will design an approach and theme that play directly to the aims and objectives of your learning and development programme.

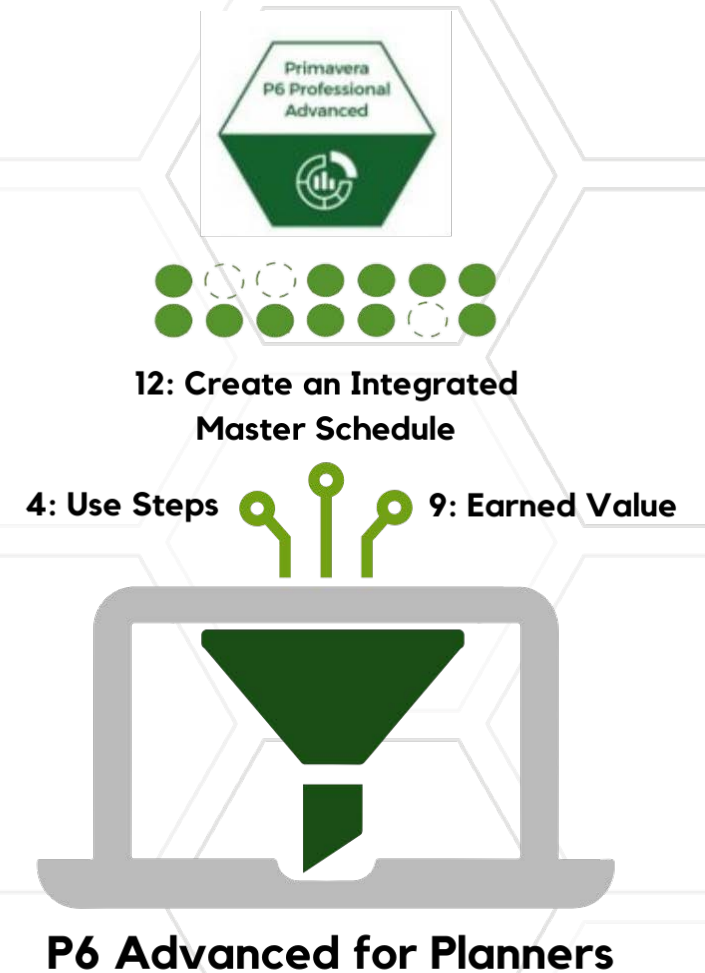

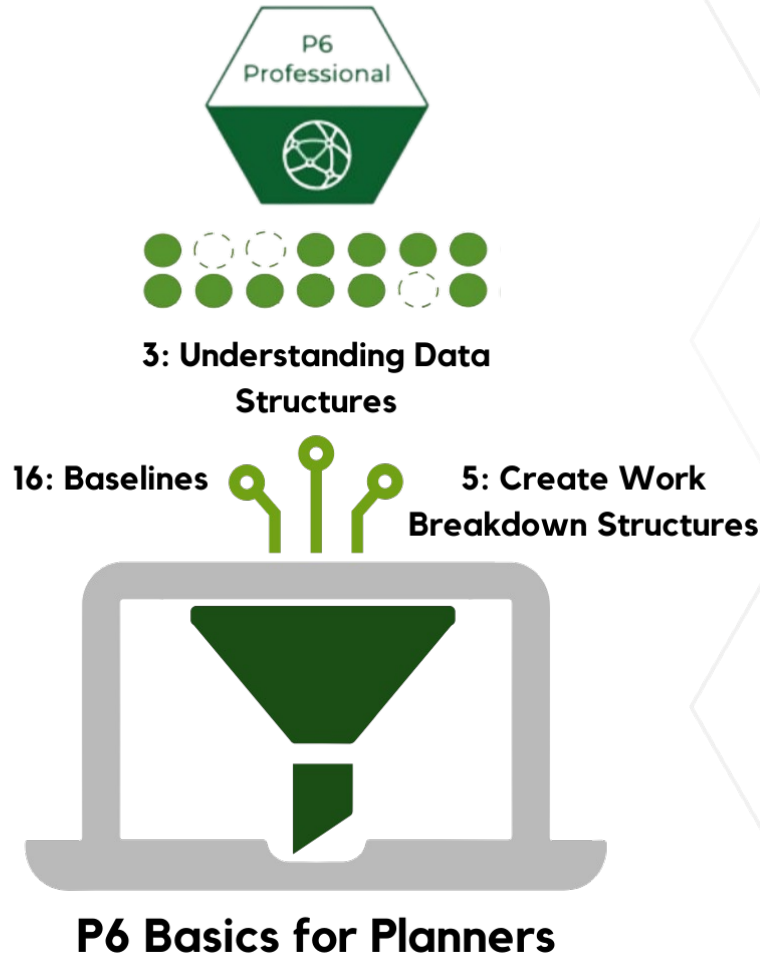

Recognising the 70:20:10 rule of learning, our training is all heavily hands-on, using real-world examples that can be tailored to your specific industry if required, using terminology and methodology that is familiar to your employees and delivered within a training environment set up to mimic your own live systems.

“The training approach was not only very clear and structured, but also made it engaging and easy to follow.”

Course Creator

Our solutions adopt a modular approach, so you can build courses that are very specific to your needs and can be based around role, skill level, experience or to support specific tasks.

Delivery

We deliver learning in the classroom, online and as a self-study option through our LMS platform. We can support hybrid delivery and phasing as part of a volume-based onboarding programme or rollout strategy.

All delivery options, including number of courses, duration, level of complexity and time-to-competence mapping, will be built around your needs.

“The practical aspects of the course were really good. It helped a lot to be able to do it all in real time along with the trainer to understand the different steps. Really useful course, I wasn’t expecting a P6 course to be that interesting.”

Evaluation

What does success mean to you? We will work with you to understand the best approach to evaluating the success of the programme to ensure we're capturing the data that you care about most and to make certain that it has a direct link back to your learning objectives and outcomes.

Our training courses incorporate knowledge checks to ensure that delegates have understood the content covered and LMS courses allow organisations to build bespoke learning journeys that are tracked and certified on completion.

Evaluation questionnaires enable you to assess course outcomes and engagement within your organisation.
